Katie was born and raised in Hollywood, Florida. She has been a member of the NSU community for many years in a multitude of roles. Katie received a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from Nova Southeastern University (NSU) in 2004. While pursuing her undergraduate degree at NSU she took a student employee position as a Student Administrative Assistant in Career Services. This was her first exposure to Student Affairs in Higher Education. After graduation Katie worked in Development and Marketing for five years before returning to NSU in January of 2009. She continued pursuing her passion for higher education administration by receiving a Master of Science in College Student Affairs from the university. In January of 2015 Katie joined the Career Development team as the Assistant Director of Graduate Transitions.

Katie’s role in the Career Development office is a new position that is tied to a Title V Grant that the University was awarded. In this new role she will be working with computer science majors, assisting them as they transition to graduate school. She looks forward to working with this population and educating them on all the possible opportunities a graduate degree can provide.

In her spare time she enjoys spending time with her husband and two children. She feels fortunate to live in such a beautiful and diverse community; and loves that her children can also.
