

How do I Identify Victims of Human Trafficking?

Identifying human trafficking victims is an important step in getting them the help they need. Some indicators concerning a potential victim include:

- Does the victim act fearful, anxious, depressed, submissive, tense, or nervous/paranoid?
- Does the victim defer to another person to speak for him or her?
- Does the victim show signs of physical and/or sexual abuse, physical restraint, confinement, or torture?
- Does the victim have few or no personal possessions?
- Can the victim freely contact friends or family?
- Is the victim allowed to socialize or attend religious services?
- Does the victim have freedom of movement?
- Does the victim work excessively long and/or unusual hours?

How can I help?

Report a potential case of human trafficking and get help by contacting: National Human Trafficking Resource Center (NHTRC).

About CREATE

The NSU Coalition for Research and Education Against Trafficking and Exploitation (CREATE) was founded in January 2015 by

Brianna Black Kent, Ph.D. and Sandrine Gaillard-Kenney, Ed.D.

Dr. Kent, Chair of the Department of Health Science, Director of the Ph.D. in Health Science program, and Assistant Professor at Nova Southeastern University (NSU).

Dr. Gaillard-Kenney, Assistant Dean for the College of Health Care Sciences at Nova Southeastern University (NSU), Associate Professor.

CREATE'S MISSION

Through research and education, CREATE will equip all members of the community, including private citizens, educators, current and future health care professionals, and organizations with the skills to identify victims of human trafficking resulting in increased reporting and referrals to appropriate health and social services.

About Human Trafficking

United States Department of State Defines Human Trafficking as:

All criminal actions that reduce, hold, or compel someone into service. This includes:

- ⇒ Forced Labor
- ⇒ Sex Trafficking
- ⇒ Bonded Labor
- ⇒ Involuntary Domestic Servitude
- ⇒ Child Sex Trafficking
- ⇒ Child Soldiers

The problem is larger than you think:
