- skin-picking (excoriation) disorder
- tic disorders

We also treat individuals with anxiety who have experienced trauma, have PTSD, or have mood disorders, such as depression.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

HOW DOES THE THERAPY WORK?

Therapy usually consists of three evaluation sessions, followed by weekly, individual sessions. If needed, sessions may be conducted more frequently. Family members and significant others are sometimes included at the client's request. You and your therapist will work together to determine therapy goals, session agendas, and length of therapy.

WHAT CAN I EXPECT?

Your therapist will not only teach you skills, but help you learn how to use the skills outside of sessions in your daily life. You will learn how to

- better manage and tolerate anxiety
- learn new, healthy coping skills while reducing unhealthy or unhelpful behaviors
- face anxiety-provoking situations
- identify and challenge unhelpful thinking
- modify beliefs or behaviors that maintain your anxiety

Our therapists are specifically trained in several evidence-based treatments, such as cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT), acceptance and commitment therapy (ACT), and exposure-based treatments. You and your therapist will discuss which treatment option(s) may be the best fit for you.
