Tara Jungersen, Ph.D., LMHC, NCC, ACS, is an assistant professor of counselor education at Nova Southeastern University. As a licensed mental health counselor, she has worked in every level of care in the mental health system, including private practice. Jungersen’s community and clinical work includes directing a clinic with a high volume of domestic violence cases. Currently, she works with the Survivor Therapy Empowerment Program (STEP), where survivors of domestic violence receive trauma-informed services as part of a comprehensive domestic violence program. Jungersen has also provided crisis and counseling services to individuals, universities, organizations, first responders, and schools during and after local emergencies, and she has published on the topic of trauma and crisis. Her research interests include clinical supervision, intimate partner violence, disaster, trauma, and treatment access for underserved populations. She is a member of the American Counseling Association, the Association for Counselor Education and Supervision, and Chi Sigma Iota.

Explore the rewarding fields related to counseling and psychology. Join us for special presentations by Tara Jungersen, Ph.D., LMHC, NCC, ACS.

Assessment Workshop on Social Science Professions
- Explore the similarities and differences between helping professions.
- Determine if the counseling profession is right for you.
- Attend a mock session on career exploration.

Preparing for Graduate School
- Find out what experience is necessary.
- Learn how to craft your portfolio and resume.

Refreshments and snacks will be provided. This event is free and open to the public. Seating is limited, so reserve your spot today at www.nova.edu/dais/sharkchats or (813) 574-5200.

Nova Southeastern University
Tampa Campus
3632 Queen Palm Drive | Tampa, Florida 33619-1311